Course Description:

The course includes facilitation in both conceptual and functional computer understanding. Conceptual literacy is the key focus of the lectures. These lectures devote special attention to current computer topics and tools from the perspective of its use by professionals in human services. Topics include using and evaluating technology for research, digital inclusion, privacy and security, net addictions, cyberbullying and parental controls, and communication tools. Functional computer literacy is the key focus of weekly labs. This part of the course teaches basic computer skills in Microsoft Word and Excel. Throughout this course, students will be introduced to a number of current web-based technologies, and challenged in discussions relating to their use and application to being a professional.

Learning Outcomes:

As a result of active participation in these sessions, a student can expect to:

- Demonstrate an awareness of keyboarding benchmarks in the profession, as well as to speak to the importance of outlining personal development goals in this area.
- Demonstrate an understanding of the practical application of Cloud computing and the various leading tools introduced throughout the course.
- Understand the fundamentals of finding credible information online and be able to demonstrate the use of different support resources to solve basic computer-related problems.
- Be able to describe key positions relating to the digital divide, and its impact on our society.

- Use Microsoft Word, Excel, OneNote, Teams and other related software for regular applications.

Course Format:

This course uses a variety of teaching/learning methods including discussion, personal reflection, experiential exercises, student presentations, role-plays, group activities and especially case studies. Our faculty aims to create a learning environment where the learner is actively engaged in inquiry, critical thinking and problem solving. The classroom provides you with a place where you can learn with and from others in a cooperative and collaborative manner.

You are expected to take a very active part in class discussions and take responsibility for your own learning. Be a positive and co-operative team member. Columbia College uses a facilitation model of instruction where the facilitator’s role is to facilitate your learning. The expectation is that you will come to class prepared with pre-class homework completed. Your facilitator will engage you in activities that are based on your completed homework and readings. Your enthusiastic and positive approach in the classroom will create an atmosphere that will help every student develop the knowledge, skills and attitudes that are needed for success.

How you conduct yourself in our classes will, to a large extent, mirror your conduct in society and your future work site. For example, if you have a tendency to ask questions, challenge the ideas of others in a respectful manner, draw out the best from your colleagues, and encourage both group development and task accomplishment in this class, it is likely you will do the same at work. A high level of student involvement and developing professionalism is expected in the classroom as you work towards your goal.
