Course Description:

Human rights and diversity issues play an important role in our society. This course will provide students with the opportunity to examine current issues and social problems relating to our current cultural society. It will provide an understanding of diversity and the associated problems and issues surrounding it. Students will also investigate the myths and realities surrounding such areas as race, gender, social class, and crime. Aboriginal peoples' issues will form an important part of this course. This area focuses upon such aspects as identity, history, art, culture, economy, languages, literature, music, community and political dynamics.

Learning Outcomes:

As a result of active participation in these sessions, a student can expect to:

- Discuss the basic concepts underpinning diversity, multiculturalism, human rights in Canadian context.
- Explain the various rights and freedom enshrined in Canadian human rights legislation and practices.
- Discuss cultural and religious diversity and know the ramifications of topics such as family violence, mental health issues and developmental disabilities.
- Discuss the cross-cultural and racial contact that police officers and civilian employees have with citizens, victims, suspects, and co-workers from diverse backgrounds.
- Demonstrate a working knowledge and understanding of cultural diversity in Canadian society and workplace.
- Critically assess the key trends and issues surrounding cultural diversity in Canada, our communities and workplaces.

Course Format:

This course uses a variety of teaching/learning methods including discussion, personal reflection, experiential exercises, student presentations, role-plays, group activities and especially case studies. Our faculty aims to create a learning environment where the learner is actively engaged in inquiry, critical thinking and problem solving. The classroom provides you with a place where you can learn with and from others in a cooperative and collaborative manner.

You are expected to take a very active part in class discussions and take responsibility for your own learning. Be a positive and co-operative team member. Columbia College uses a facilitation model of instruction where the facilitator's role is to facilitate your learning. The expectation is that you will come to class prepared with pre-class homework completed. Your facilitator will engage you in activities that are based on your completed homework and readings. Your enthusiastic and positive approach in the classroom will create an atmosphere that will help every student develop the knowledge, skills and attitudes that are needed for success.

How you conduct yourself in our classes will, to a large extent, mirror your conduct in society and your future work site. For example, if you have a tendency to ask questions, challenge the ideas of others in a respectful manner, draw out the best from your colleagues, and encourage both group development and task accomplishment in this class, it is likely you will do the same at work. A high level of student involvement and developing professionalism is expected in the classroom as you work towards your goal.
