Class Time: 8:30 am – 5:00 pm (Sat.)

Room: 805-119

Credit: 3

Prerequisite: None

Note: It is the student's responsibility to be familiar with the information contained in the Course Outline and to clarify any areas of concern with the facilitator.

Course Description:

This course will cover an examination of current theoretical explanations of criminal behaviour and the application of these theories in the criminal justice system. This analysis includes biological, psychological, social process, social structure, rational choice, and critical theories of crime causation and treatment.

Learning Outcomes:

As a result of active participation in these sessions, a student can expect to:

- Define, explain, and describe the key theories, principles and concepts associated with the study of Criminology.
- Compare and contrast the similarities and differences between criminology and criminal justice.
- Explain each of the six major areas of criminology as a discipline.
- Identify and describe the major social correlates of criminal behaviour in Canada.
- Evaluate each of the sociological and environmental theories of crime.
- Critically assess crime in relation to economics, intellectuality, and personality.
- Explain the role of statistics and research in relation to the evaluation of criminological theories.

Course Format:

This course uses a variety of teaching/learning methods including discussion, personal reflection, experiential exercises, student presentations, role-plays, group activities and especially case studies. Our faculty aims to create a learning environment where the learner is actively engaged in inquiry, critical thinking and problem solving. The classroom provides you with a place where you can learn with and from others in a cooperative and collaborative manner.

You are expected to take a very active part in class discussions and take responsibility for your own learning. Be a positive and co-operative team member. Columbia College uses a facilitation model of instruction where the facilitator's role is to facilitate your learning. The expectation is that you will come to class prepared with pre-class homework completed. Your facilitator will engage you in activities that are based on your completed homework and readings. Your enthusiastic and positive approach in the classroom will create an atmosphere that will help every student develop the knowledge, skills and attitudes that are needed for success.

How you conduct yourself in our classes will, to a large extent, mirror your conduct in society and your future work site. For example, if you have a tendency to ask questions, challenge the ideas of others in a respectful manner, draw out the best from your colleagues, and encourage both group development and task accomplishment in this class, it is likely you will do the same at work. A high level of student involvement and developing professionalism is expected in the classroom as you work towards your goal.
